"Never let your past decisions determine your future outcome." – MARK DUDLEY

NONTANDO MPOSO

DURBAN recently hosted some of Africa's great minds in fashion, technology, literature and the arts. They gathered at Greyville Convention Centre last weekend for the annual Africa Fashion Exchange (AFX19) experience.

The event is a flagship event by the non-profit organisation KZN Fashion Council, which is celebrating its 10-year anniversary

Themed "Africa Connect", it offered a networking opportunity for designers to introduce their brands, a learning platform for students and a business platform for buyers.

We spent each day listening to great panel discussions by industry experts and thought leaders. Day one discussions included the chief executive of Imprint and country co-ordinator for Fashion Revolution South Africa, Cyril Naicker; nuclear scientist Nomso Faith Kana from the Presidential Commission on the Fourth Industrial Revolution (4IR); and founder of sustainable living non-profit Twyg, Jackie May, speaking under the theme "Sustainability, Technology and Innovation".

Takeaways from the conversation included the importance of building a sustainable fashion brand, being a conscious consumer by supporting the local clothing and manufacturing industry, and exploring other careers in fashion, such as in film and technology.

Under the theme for day two, "Afro-Euro and Afro-Asia", Indonesian designer Nonita Respati, Palesa Mokubung, the first African designer to collaborate with H&M, and founder of SunGoddess Vanya Mangaliso spoke on the influence of fashion in our culture and everyday lives.

The final panel discussion, with the theme "When art, heritage, music, literature, design, film and fashion meets", brought together author of the Hlomu series Dudu Busani-Dube, artistic director of the state art theatre Aubrey Sekhabi, award-winning visual artist Selloane Moeti, founder of House of Fabrosanz Sandi Mazibuko, and artist and entrepreneur Okmalumkoolkat.

Mazibuko, who designs her textiles inspired by the Nguni tribes, spoke about the importance of protecting your art against copyright violation, while Okmalumkoolkat showcased his futuristic label, Spova.

This is a unique experience in the local fashion scene that highlights different aspects in the industry. The speakers from Cape Town, Johannesburg, Durban and Indonesia shared valuable insights in their fields, with the audience getting the opportunity to ask questions. No other platform like this exists in the country. A combination of established and emerging designers showcased their collections in the evenings. The first night was kept for a dinner extravaganza to celebrate the 10-year anniversary.

Kudos to the fashion council for their selection of designers from across South Africa.

They had industry legends and change-makers such as Thando and Mangaliso of SunGoddess and Philosophy by Jenni Button, invited Indonesian designer Nonita Respati of label Purana, renowned designers Mzukisi Mbane of Imprint, Mokubung of the Mantsho label, Mazibuko and upcycling designer Katekani Moreku. Then there was emerging designer Makhosazane Ntshangase of label

African ideas ramp up

Fashion and other creatives strutted their stuff at the AFX19 experience

A DESIGN by KZN's Sandi Mazibuko of Fabrosanz

DESIGNS by Joburg designer Katekani Moreku who won an award for Eco-Friendly Fashion for his recycled designs.

"Sistas Felas", new on the scene, where the designer has dressed the likes of current Miss SA Zozibini Tunzi. Ntshangase was awarded the KZNFC Best Ladieswear Designer title.

Officiating the event, KZN MEC for Economic Development, Tourism and Environmental Affairs Nomusa Dube-Ncube spoke on how fashion has a huge potential to put KwaZulu-Natal on the international map. Overall, the AFX19 experience was outstanding, offering an interactive platform where one got to know designers and their work through the runway shows as well as the pop-up shops at the venue.

It's a great networking platform if you're in the fashion industry and offers an alternative to the usual fashion weeks. For more information on the fashion council and AFX19, visit www.kznfc.org
